profession is much different work from other jobs. It is a unique challenge to have the option of choosing not to accept jobs if the wage is family wage. There is no minimum wage of the unemployment benefit received by people who are only able to find a family wage.

Memphians need that time on the front lines. That the Senate give them only the time allotted to a job-training program, they would find the support the program will create and that time will be the best position on the road.

New incentive program offers some hope for untrained jobless

By Josh Ardeman

Last month Congress and Democratic Governor Dr. Billie Rayburn announced that the federal government would be starting a new program that will pay employers and their trainees up to $10,000 in an effort to reduce the unemployment problem.

The Federal Training Incentive program (FTIP) allows some hope to unemployed, untrained workers.

The program works in two ways, on the long term side employers who are willing to hire a job trainee who is unemployed will be paid $1,000 a year for the first three years of their training. On the short term side employers who are willing to hire a job trainee who is unemployed will be paid $1,000 a year for the first three years of their training.

The short term aspect of the program that provides for the training of an unemployed worker in a job other than his own pays employers $1,000 if the trainee stays in the program for a year. This, however, the worker's skills, and upon their employment opportunities.

All this from the same source who cut funding in Spokane colleges and universities due to government's cost cutting.

Dr. Rayburn has made a grave mistake in cutting off one end of the rope to collect unemployment who are seeking jobs. This is a mistake. To cut the other end of the rope is to cut the unemployment rate that is close to 12 percent here.

Why not spend funding to build the students and the unemployed? Is the provincial government to be the only one to do this? Is the federal government to be the only one to do this? Is the provincial government to be the only one to do this?

Students will provide a great deal of the training for the unemployed who are seeking jobs. This is a mistake. To cut the other end of the rope is to cut the unemployment rate that is close to 12 percent here.

High winds delay inflating of Miller Balloon

by Barbara Gilbert

Up, up and away in a beautiful red Miller balloon will be the 1982 Spokesman Festival 25 years high winds delayed inflating the balloon and perhaps exposed it to get off the ground.

The wind was too strong to inflate the balloon last night.

The Miller balloon was an promotional vehicle for Miller Highlife (from Carlsbad, N.M.) and was the only balloon to be inflated last night. The balloon was inflated at 10:30 p.m. at the Miller Highlife Park in the Carlsbad area. The balloon was inflated at 10:30 p.m. at the Miller Highlife Park in the Carlsbad area. How to love football and keep your sanity on Sunday afternoons

by Doug Smith

Knowing that there are many of you people who do some strange things, do sit like watching football, and also knowing that too many of you hate to turn on your television Sunday afternoons because the channels are cluttered with football, I am going to give you football fans a lesson on how to enjoy watching a football game.

First, and most important, is to have a favorite team. A team that you really want to win. There are many good ways of choosing a favorite team from that list that is out there playing.

The color or style of uniform is quite a popular way of choosing. (Of course are especially good at choosing a favorite for the state of uniform colors.) If you don't like the team with the best uniform, then there is no team in there a game is made more fun to watch if you like one of the teams. (Do like Cowboys?)

You may like to cheer for the underdog, the team with no win or lost record. You could pick your favorite because of a player on the team. Or if you like to see their game to back your player for the Patriots game.

Once you have chosen your favorite team and the team you like, then you have to start watching the plays. And not just the quarterback's name but the names of all other players like running backs or wide receivers. It is important to keep your mind on the game if you don't know a player's name, it is a waste.

You may remember me to take the game too seriously. A football game is never to match of you're doing something else. Like reading or planning through a magazine. If you try to concentrate completely on the game, you will be bored before half time and you will miss the excitement of the last quarter.

Another good idea for beginners who find that they can't keep their interest in a game is to try watching only the last quarter. Often more happens in the last quarter than in the other three put together. If you start finding the last quarter boring, then you may start getting more interested in the rest of the game.

If you still can't get in the mood to watch, try making up on the games that are being played. Get Saturday's paper and look at the profiles, then see what game is supposed to be the most interesting and read about the players. Start making your own predictions and then check to see who had the better record, who is the guy in the paper.

Football can also be a little more exciting if you've had a few drinks. (If you are going to drink it should be beer.) Inside the house or outside, you can watch the game. Make a few bets, the stakes don't have to be high, but the game will be more interesting if you have a couple of bucks riding on it.

If you don't understand the game completely, invite a friend over who does. Once you start getting to know what is going on, you will find the game getting more interesting.

Doing lots of work up to a football game can also help to catch your interest in the game. There are many different ways of running a pool with the simplest being whoever gets the most yards wins out of the 100 yards played.

If there is nothing that can be done to get yourself interested in the game then you had better have something else to do on Sunday afternoon because all you're going to find on TV is football.
